Yereruyk Temple

Ani

Yereruyk architectural complex is found in written sources and specialized literature under the names of Yereruyk Basilica, Yereruyk St.

Atsvatsatsin, and Yereruyk (Yererouk). The inscription carved inside the basilica Yereryuk was called "Martyrium of Karapet and Nakhavka" and in the Late Middle Ages, it became a monastery-church called Holy Trinity.

According to the latest archaeological research, the temple dates back to the VI century.

Yereruyk is one of the achievements of both Armenian classical and Early Christian architecture.
